A photograph of three men in dark suits and light-colored shirts performing a ribbon-cutting ceremony. The man in the center, wearing glasses, is using a pair of yellow-handled scissors to cut a red, white, and blue striped ribbon. The man on the left is looking on, and the man on the right is clapping. They are standing in front of a modern train with a white body and orange horizontal stripes. A small window is visible on the train's side. The background is a bright orange wall with horizontal lines.
